

HOW TO FEEL COMFORTABLE IN FRONT OF THE CAMERA

A Luxury Wedding Experience for Camera-Shy Couples

Most couples feel exactly like you

HOW I PHOTOGRAPH PEOPLE WHO HATE CAMERAS

If you're worried about looking awkward, feeling self-conscious or not knowing what to do with your hands...

you're completely normal. In over 14 years of photographing weddings, I've learned that almost every couple says the same thing: 'We're terrible in front of the camera.' And almost every one of them leaves saying:

“That was actually fun.”

One of the things couples often tell me after their wedding is, "That was so much easier than we expected." That's because I never ask you to perform or pretend to be someone you're not. Instead, I create moments where you can simply enjoy each other's company. Whether you're walking hand in hand through the gardens, sharing a quiet conversation, or laughing at one of my terrible jokes, I'm looking for the genuine connection between you. Those are the moments that become the photographs you'll treasure most—timeless, honest and full of emotion.

YOU DON'T NEED TO KNOW HOW TO POSE

You Don't Need Modelling Experience: You don't need to memorise poses. You don't need to perform. I'll guide you naturally with simple prompts that create genuine connection rather than forced smiles.

My Job Is To Make You Forget The Camera:

I create space for real moments. We'll chat. We'll walk. You'll hold hands. You'll laugh. You'll simply enjoy being together. Before long, you'll stop thinking about the camera completely.

A Relaxed Experience From Start To Finish:

Your wedding isn't a photoshoot. It's one of the biggest days of your life. I'll gently direct you when needed, disappear into the background when moments unfold naturally, and make sure you spend your day celebrating—not posing.

TRUST THE PROCESS

I Photograph People Who Hate Having Their Photo Taken

The truth is, most of my couples don't love being in front of a camera. In fact, many tell me they're dreading the portraits more than anything else. If that sounds familiar, you're exactly the kind of couple I love photographing.

I'm not expecting you to know how to pose or suddenly become confident because a camera is pointed at you. That's my job. I'm naturally quite relaxed, a little bit goofy, and I believe the best photographs come from real interactions rather than perfect poses. I'll chat with you, make you laugh, and give you simple things to do instead of asking you to stand awkwardly and smile at the camera.

Most of the time, you'll simply be walking hand in hand, talking to each other, sharing a joke, stealing a hug or taking a quiet moment together. Those little moments create genuine smiles, natural expressions and photographs that feel effortless because they are.

Before long, you'll stop thinking about where your hands are or whether you're doing it "right." You'll simply be enjoying being together, and that's when the magic happens.

Some of my favourite compliments from couples are, "We actually had fun." That's always my goal—to make you feel completely at ease so your photographs reflect who you really are, not a version of you trying to perform for the camera.

MY REAL SECRET... SHH, DON'T TELL

Want to know a little secret?

Most people think the perfect photograph happens at the exact moment I press the shutter.

The truth is, it's usually a few moments later.

When we're taking photographs together, you'll hear lots of little clicks. Click, click, click. Sometimes far more than you'd expect. That's because I'm not waiting for a single perfect pose or expression.

At first, most couples are aware of every click. They smile, then wonder if that was the photo. They laugh, then immediately look back at the camera. They're anticipating the moment.

But something wonderful happens after a minute or two.

The camera becomes normal.

The clicks fade into the background.

The nerves start to disappear.

You stop thinking about having your photograph taken and start focusing on each other instead.

That's when I find the moments I love most.

We'll chat, we'll laugh, you'll hear plenty of clicks, and before long you'll forget the camera is even there.

And that's my real secret.

Those are the photographs that feel real.

The ones that take you straight back to how your wedding day felt.

So if you're worried about being camera shy, don't be.

The little glance that says everything.

The burst of laughter after a terrible joke.

The giggles between poses.

The quiet moments in between.
